Campaigning trust

A WOMEN'S charity dealing with issues concerning minority communities has launched a campaign raising awareness about forced marriages.

JAN Trust aims to reach out and offer advice in the borough because of its dense ethnic minority population.

The campaign was founded by Sajda Mughal, project director at JAN Trust and a member of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's Forced Marriage Unit Partnership Board. Visit www.jantrust.org for more details.

£500k prize waiting

A JACKPOT of £500,000 from the National Lottery's Thunderball game won on a ticket bought in Haringey is yet to be claimed.

The ticket matched all five numbers and the Thunderball in the draw on Wednesday November 14. The winning numbers were 3, 20, 23, 26, 30 and the Thunderball was 8. The lucky ticket holder has until 11pm on Monday May 13 2013 to make their claim.

Anyone who believes they have the winning ticket for any of the National Lottery draws within the 180-day deadline should call the National Lottery Line on 0845 910 0000.

Stay safe with app

POLICE are visiting hairdressing salons and beauty shops across the borough to offer customers personal safety advice.

The awareness campaign includes the new Cabwise mobile phone app, which provides a quick and easy way to book a licensed minicab and get home safely.

Safer transport officers will also be in the Muswell Hill area talking to pub and club-goers about personal safety and carrying out plain clothes operations to target taxi touts and illegal minicab drivers in the area.

Visit www.tfl.gov.uk/cabwise for more details.

Phone theft warning

PEOPLE are being warned to keep their phones safe after a spate of thefts in which suspects on a moped ride up and snatch mobiles while people are using them.

There have been 14 incidents in the last month, with the majority taking place between 6pm and 9.30pm at transport hubs.

Visit www.met.police.uk/crimeprevention/personal.htm for advice on how to stay safe.

Haringey Shed youngsters show off talents on stage

A GROUP of 30 young people from Tottenham showed off their talents and launched an album alongside professional musicians and producers last week.

The event in Finsbury Park on Tuesday was organised by Haringey Shed at Platform, Islington Council's arts venue for young people.

Haringey Shed is an inclusive music and theatre company that gives young people from the borough the opportunity to shine in a professional performance environment.

Young people aged 12 and over performed original comedy, spoken word poetry and dance, alongside vocal groups and sets from Haringey Shed's house band.

The Shed Band is a group of youngsters aged 11 to 18 who write their own songs with the support of professional musicians in a safe and inclusive environment. The band played live renditions of original songs from its new album Coming Through The Purple Speakers, which was launched at the event.

Dexter Hercules, a drummer for JLS, Rita Ora and Little Mix played an exclusive set, while Britain's Got Talent finalists and dancers Twist and Pulse supported the event via video.

Performances: Clockwise, from above, Drummer Dexter Hercules meets staff from Haringey Shed; vocal and dance group Zephyr take to the stage; spoken word artist Fidele performs

Dexter said: "It was inspiring seeing the young people doing what they love."

Haringey Shed offers a range of performing arts activities to children and young people from across the borough.

KEEPING TRACK OF HMOS

HARINGEY Council is taking action to keep track of properties being converted into houses for multiple occupancy (HMOS).

From the end of November next year, homeowners will need planning permission to make such changes to a property.

Under current rules, properties with fewer than three storeys can usually be converted into HMOS without planning permission – creating a loss of family housing.

This has been done by many landlords in parts of Haringey, raising concern among neighbours, who have reported problems to the council about antisocial behaviour, poorly maintained properties and unstable neighbourhoods due to an ever-changing population.

Nilgun Canver, cabinet member for the environment, said: "We have wanted this for some time. Residents have told us about problems relating to HMOS on certain streets and this planning tool will help us identify which properties are suitable for conversion and, if given planning permission, we can ensure that their tenants get to live in properties that conform to health and safety guidelines."

"Problems with fly-tipping and uncontrolled rubbish disposal often stem from tenants in HMOS not being guided by landlords to dispose of goods in the correct manner. I sincerely hope this Article 4 [restricting planning development rights] will help us regenerate those streets which have been most affected by these conversions."

People can have their say until 5pm on January 11 by emailing ldf@haringey.gov.uk or by writing to Planning Policy Team, Level 6, River Park House, 225 High Road, Wood Green, N22 8HQ.

A copy can be viewed at River Park House or at www.haringey.gov.uk/policy_and_projects

Detectives appeal for information following attempted rape in park

DETECTIVES are appealing for information after the attempted rape of a woman in Downhills Park in Tottenham in late October.

The victim, in her 20s, was attacked by a man whom she had asked for directions when she got lost between 2am and 2.30am on Sunday October 28.

She had been at a party in Wood Green and was trying to make her way to Turnpike Lane when she lost her way on the Noel Park Estate.

The woman saw the man passing by and asked him for directions to Turnpike Lane.

He led her to Downhills Park, where he attacked and tried to rape her.

The woman was able to get away and fled into a nearby road where she tried to stop passing cars for help. A driver stopped and advised her to call the police.

The suspect is described as white, of eastern European appearance and with an eastern European accent and athletic build, 6ft tall and aged between 25 and 35.

He is believed to have been wearing blue jeans with a belt and a dark hooded top.

Anyone with information is asked to call Detective Constable Simon Chapman at the Met's Sapphire Unit on 020 8345 4354 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

Chase Farm campaigners call for all MPs to oppose closures

By Koos Couvée

HEALTH campaigners from Enfield met other groups from across London in Westminster last week as campaigns continued against hospital A&E closures in the capital.

Kate Wilkinson and Kieran McGregor, of the Save Chase Farm campaign, attended a meeting at Portcullis House, Westminster, on Thursday, to discuss the planned closure of front-line services at nine London hospitals, including Chase Farm, in The Ridgeway, Enfield.

The meeting, at which Mr McGregor spoke about the group's experiences since 2005, was attended by Andy Slaughter, MP for Hammersmith, and Lewisham East MP Heidi Alexander, who are supporting the campaign to save A&E services around the capital.

Mr Slaughter subsequently wrote to backbench London MPs to support his call for a House of Commons debate on A&E closures.

Yesterday he confirmed that both Edmonton MP Andy Love and Enfield North MP Nick de Bois had signed up. Under existing plans the 24-hour A&E and maternity wards at Chase Farm will be disbanded in autumn 2013 and replaced by a 12-hour urgent care centre.

Mrs Wilkinson said that in addition to support for a parliamentary debate, Save Chase Farm wants Enfield's MPs to support a cross-party deputation to Health Secretary Jeremy Hunt, putting pressure on him to reverse the decision to downgrade Chase Farm.

She criticised Mr de Bois for refusing to do so.

"As a campaign group we have always worked across political party divides and in the past made deputations with various MPs to different health ministers," she said.

"This is where our strength lies, and this is the reason the hospital is still there. It is fundamental we have cross-party agreement and urgent action on this issue.

"We are continuing to put pressure on our elected representatives in order to hold them to their election promises, so that they continue to make the case that the plans for Chase Farm are simply unworkable.

"Cross-party action needs to be taken now before any more services are being removed and our MPs need to work with the council on this as they are scrutinising the level of care provided in the borough."

But Mr de Bois said: "I do not think the time is right for a cross-party delegation on this issue, especially because Enfield Council chose not to challenge the decision for a downgrade through a judicial review.

"At present I am not so much concerned with the politics of all this, I am more concerned with working pragmatically.

"I have met the North London Cluster to secure additional funding for Chase Farm, which has been consistently underfunded for many years.

"When the time is right, I will support cross-party action on Chase Farm."

Enfield is one of eight boroughs facing A&E closures. In June, health bosses put forward plans to shut four out of nine A&E departments across north and west London, including Charing Cross, Ealing, Hammersmith and Central Middlesex hospitals. There are also plans to close A&E departments at three other hospitals – St Helier in Sutton, King George in Ilford and Lewisham.

Simon bangs drum for organ donation after double lung transplant

Chas & Dave musician also got new liver ten years ago

By Charlotte Lloyd

A DRUMMER has been performing with his childhood heroes Chas & Dave just a few months after undergoing a life-saving double lung transplant.

Simon Cooper, 29, from Oakwood, who has spent more than a decade working with the inclusive theatre group Chickenshed in Southgate, has performed three gigs with the duo.

They include one at the indigO2 venue in Greenwich on Saturday.

The operation in August has transformed the life of Simon, who has cystic fibrosis.

He told the Advertiser: "Before I could really only play the drums for about half an hour before having to take a break. My lung function had gone down to 16 per cent and the doctors said that I would not make it to December if I hadn't had the operation."

Simon's breathing had become so difficult that he was forced to use a gas canister, which he hung around his neck during gigs.

Doctors told him he would need to go on the lung transplant list in 2011, but it was not until April that he bit the bullet.

He was on the list for four months before he got a call saying that a pair of lungs was available.

"At the moment my lung function is at 52 per cent and it should go up to 80 or 90 per cent," said Simon.

"It has really changed my life – I can play the drums for much longer now."

The drummer said he got to know Chas & Dave – who hail from Edmonton and Ponders End respectively – after following them on tour. And when Chas found out he was a drummer he asked Simon to do a gig with them. He has played on and off with the duo since then.

"I did a gig with them in 2011 and Chas said: 'Next time you play with us, you will have had your lung transplant', and he turned out to be right," added Simon.

The 29-year-old also had a liver transplant more than a decade ago.

He said: "There aren't many people who have had a liver and a double lung transplant – I am quite pleased really."

Simon wants to encourage as many people as possible to sign up to the organ donor register.

He said: "If it wasn't for people on the donor list, there would be no transplants."

"It would be really great if more people can sign up and help more people like me, who desperately need the transplants."

Council performs a dramatic U-turn over events on green

By Ruth McKee

CAMPAIGNERS were celebrating last week after council chiefs performed a remarkable U-turn, throwing out a decision to allow entertainment events on Chase Green.

However, Enfield Council leader Doug Taylor denied the change of heart was because he lives close to the green.

The shock move provided welcome relief to the many residents who opposed the scheme at an unprecedented meeting of the licensing sub-committee last Wednesday.

Janet McQueen, chairwoman of the Enfield Society, said she "very pleased" by the council's change of heart.

Enfield Council's cultural services department had applied for a licence to hold 20 events a year including films and plays on the green.

Ms McQueen told the committee that she had received 1,104 letters objecting to the plans.

"There will be an increase in traffic as well as the parking considerations," she said. "I would simply say this is not needed and not wanted."

Simon Gardner, the council's head of leisure and culture, told the meeting the intention had been to drive up footfall in the town centre.

"The application was made in line with the council policy to deliver sustainable town centres and to encourage more people to use town centres in the borough," he said.

The three members of the licensing subcommittee deliberated for an hour and a half before deciding to approve the application.

However, the following morning Mr Taylor announced that the decision would be reversed.

In a statement he said: "Because of the strength of feeling and the persuasive arguments

Entertainment free: Chase Green presented by objectors to the Chase Green licensing application, I will be instructing officers not to allow events to take place on Chase Green and to surrender the licence at the earliest opportunity."

He told the Advertiser yesterday: "It would be a scurrilous accusation to say that where I live or my own views influenced the decision."

"I don't live close enough to be affected by activities on the green and I find it quite offensive that someone would suggest that."

Ms McQueen added: "We feel this is absolutely the right decision – we were unable to understand the decision of the licensing subcommittee in the first place."

Dementia sufferer has a lucky escape

Man, 84, found after 14 hours in freezing cold following extensive search by police

By Ruth McKee

THE family of a man with dementia who survived a night outdoors in freezing temperatures has thanked the police for their help in trying to find him.

Italian-born Giovanni Negri, 84, was returning to his son Giancarlo Negri's house in Broadfields Avenue, Winchmore Hill, with his wife Anita on the night of Saturday December 1 when he disappeared.

His family were left devastated and feared the worst when the search could not find Mr Negri, also of Broadfields Avenue, despite police officers using dogs, helicopters and heat-seeking technology.

The search finally had to be called off at 3am on December 2.

However, the family's prayers were answered when police officers knocked on Mr Negri's son's door and said the pensioner had been found lying frozen in a neighbour's back garden.

The neighbour immediately called the police and wrapped Mr Negri up in a duvet.

Although the pensioner was suffering from hypothermia after being exposed to the elements for 14 hours, he was otherwise unharmed from the ordeal.

And by 4pm that day Mr Negri was able to eat a full meal at Chase Farm Hospital, where he remained under observation for a few days.

Centre stage: Giovanni Negri and family

Peter Ciccone, Mr Negri's son-in-law, praised everyone who pitched in to help find his father-in-law.

"We were wondering what had happened to him and thinking of what he must have been going through," he said. "It was dreadful."

"You think the police have lots of problems to deal with on a Saturday night – all that they were doing was a great source of comfort to the family."

"The professionalism, commitment and compassion shown by officers was outstanding."

Residents need to hurry up to claim their money

Approved: Residents have secured £35,000 for a healthy eating cafe in Broomfield Park

By Ruth McKee

MORE than £1million is lying untouched in Enfield Council coffers – with only four months left to stake a claim for the pot of cash set aside to help residents revamp their communities.

This is the second year of the Enfield Residents' Priority Fund, which was set up in 2010 as a way for people to invest in their neighbourhoods.

The fund, which this year totals £2.1million, is divided between wards in the borough, according to need, and residents can apply for grants for projects they believe will benefit their whole community.

But figures included in Ponders End Area Forum documents reveal that currently only £999,137 out of the £2.1million has been claimed, with one ward, Highlands, yet to claim a penny of the £57,000 that it has been allocated for worthy causes.

The deadline for applications is April 2013.

Four months to go... and there's £1.1million left in priority fund

Anne-Marie Pearce, a ward councillor for Highlands, in Winchmore Hill, said that she was still consulting constituents on how best to use the money.

She added: "We only had a residents' meeting about this three weeks ago. We have got a spread-out area and we'd like to hold a public meeting about it so that everybody knows about the fund."

However, cabinet member for finance Andrew Stafford, a ward councillor for Edmonton Green, which has already awarded £127,125 out of its pot of £185,000, suggests there could be a different reason for the non-existent uptake in Highlands, one of the borough's more affluent wards.

"Edmonton Green is in a poorer part of the borough, so when our constituents have access to a pot of money to improve their area they are very good at getting themselves organised and their community leaders' help," said Mr Stafford.

But another Highlands ward councillor Jon Kaye insisted: "We wanted to see the first project from last year in Boxers Lake Open Space getting under way before we consider the next one."

"Last year we gave £20,000 to the local Scout group."

Some of the projects that have been approved for funding this year include a family counselling project in Jubilee Park ward in Edmonton, while £35,000 has been secured for The Palmers Greenery, a healthy eating cafe in Broomfield Park.

Trial date set for teen charged with raping girl, 11, in park

A TEENAGER accused of raping an 11-year-old girl in Jubilee Park, Edmonton, last month is due to go on trial next year.

Opemipo Jaji, of Oswald Place, Edmonton, appeared at the Old Bailey on Thursday via video link.

The 18-year-old, who is also charged with the attempted rape of a girl under the age of 13 on November 23, was remanded in custody.

Judge Mr Justice Saunders set a trial date for April 10. There was no application for bail and a plea and case management hearing is scheduled for January 31.

Nine-year jail sentence for gun supplier

By Ruth McKee

A GUN seller, who flogged weapons across the capital, was jailed for nine years last week.

Adewole Adetunji, 44, of Bradmore Court, Brimsdown, was found guilty at Snaresbrook Crown Court on Friday of conspiracy to supply banned weapons.

He also admitted possessing drugs with intent to supply as well as passport offences.

Adetunji was jailed alongside four other men who were also involved in gun running in the capital.

He was arrested on June 11 by officers from the Met Police's Central Task Force.

A total of four guns, including a converted firearm and a Mac 10 machine gun, were recovered during the investigation.

Two men from Tottenham, Khavi Chadee, 26, and Bradley Buchanan, 25, were each jailed to six years after pleading guilty to conspiracy to supply a banned weapon.

David Domolafe, 39, also from Tottenham, was found guilty of intent to supply a banned weapon and was also sentenced to six years behind bars.

Dyrell Nestor, 24, from Islington, was found guilty of the same offence and was jailed for eight years.

Detective Inspector Rob Murray, from the Met's Central Task Force, who led the operation, said: "There is no doubt these were dangerous individuals who had every intention of selling the firearms on to other criminals to commit serious offences, and I'm pleased they are now behind bars."

"The Met Police Central Task Force is committed to targeting criminal networks and ensuring weapons such as these are taken off our streets.

"The sentencing sends out a clear message to those involved in such crimes that we will do everything we can to pursue them and bring them to justice."

Cat Hill fight goes on

Fighting on: Kim Coleman, holding a covenant that includes a clause protecting the Cat Hill site for use as an educational establishment – but the document is not legally binding because it has not been signed

Campaigners take protest against revised bid for housing scheme to planning panel meeting

By Koos Couvée

SOUTHGATE residents last week told a developer they remain fiercely opposed to a proposed housing development in Cat Hill.

At a public meeting of Enfield Council's planning panel at Ashmole Academy, in Cecil Road, Southgate, last Wednesday, about 250 residents, councillors and MPs questioned developer L&Q, which has applied for planning permission for a 232-home housing development at the former Middlesex University campus site in Cat Hill, Cockfosters.

This is the second planning application to be submitted by L&Q. The first was rejected by councillors in March. However, campaigners say the new development would still be too dense and would affect wildlife.

Kim Coleman, from the Campaign For Cat Hill, said: "All that L&Q have done is make some cosmetic tweaks to their original plan to delude the residents of Cockfosters and East Barnet. The development remains too dense and is out of character with the area."

"We got our point across at the meeting and I think L&Q were very uncomfortable. We will keep our campaign going as we want the site to continue to be used for education purposes."

Under the revised plans, the developer cut the number of homes from 250 to 232, while the proposed blocks of flats have been reduced from six to four storeys. L&Q also claims to have addressed campaigners' environmental concerns, having conducted wildlife surveys.

Simon Baxter, L&Q's assistant director for design and planning, told the meeting: "L&Q is proposing well-designed homes that match the character of the area, for people on a range of incomes, including some much-needed affordable homes."

"As long-term stewards of the Cat Hill ponds, we would manage the woodland and boost species diversity. Our plans would also boost the area's economy as we would spend £150,000 on local apprenticeships and contribute funds to be spent by Enfield Council on services including education."

However, David Burrowes, MP for Enfield Southgate, who was joined at the meeting by fellow Conservative Theresa Villiers, the MP for Chipping Barnet, said: "I don't believe the new application is addressing the concerns residents have previously raised."

"A reduction in the number of units from 250 to 232 cannot mitigate the fact that the development is simply not in keeping with the character of the area."

A decision on the development is expected to be taken in February next year.

Man is released on bail following an alleged robbery on newsagents

A MAN has been bailed after being arrested following alleged altercation at a newsagents last week.

He entered Abbott's News, in Baker Street, Enfield, at about 12.30pm on Thursday and went to purchase a chocolate bar.

A confrontation with shopkeeper Susan Guzeldas ensued, which ended in the man leaving the shop at speed, before getting into a black Mercedes parked in Churchbury Road and driving off.

It is alleged that the man attempted to grab money from the till. Some items of stock were knocked onto the floor.

Mrs Guzeldas said she was shaken and angry after the incident and had called the police, but did not close her shop.

"I still had customers to serve," she said.

Police spotted the car shortly afterwards in nearby Donkey Lane. A man was arrested on suspicion of commercial robbery and driving under the influence of drugs. He has since been bailed pending further enquiries.

Power Plate? What's it all about?

The Power Plate is a vibration device designed to enhance and increase the effectiveness of any workout. It is effective for all ages, lifestyles and physical abilities and uses the principle of Acceleration Training to stimulate the body's natural response to vibration.

The principle by which Power Plate machines work comes from the body's natural response to the vibration it is subjected to. The vibration from the Power Plate provides an unstable surface for the body to deal with; with each 25-50MHz vibration produced per second from the Power Plate, the body is in turn forced to perform reflexive muscle actions 25-50 times per second. By assuming various positions on the Power Plate machine or using the adjustable straps, different muscle groups and areas of the body are stimulated far more effectively and in less time than the standard resistance training programme. The Power Plate gives you your results quicker!

You don't need to be an athlete or in need of physical therapy to benefit from using the Power Plate machines. There are a host of health benefits for everyone, such as an improvement in strength and muscle tone, reduced cellulite, increased bone mineral density, improved blood circulation, improvements in flexibility and range of motion.

Power Plate is also used by Danni Minogue, Lee Westwood, David James and Serena Williams.

So, the Power Plate is for anyone and everyone; for those that want to tone up and lose weight, those that need rehabilitation, those that want to be the best in their sport and those that want something different!

"I love my new Power Plate(r) machine. Even after only two weeks on the Power Plate(r) machine I can already see a difference in my legs and stomach. It is really working, everything seems so much firmer. I love the fact that I can see results in such a short time with such little effort!"

The ADVERTISER COMMENT

People power pays

APATHY is a cruel curse that besets our modern lives. But then along comes an issue that so galvanises a community we suddenly remember what democracy is meant for.

Such an issue was Enfield Council's plan to stage films, plays or even mini-festivals on Chase Green.

The residents whose houses overlooked the green joined forces with nature lovers and traffic campaigners from every corner of the borough and applied the weight of their pressure – making it all but impossible for the council to go ahead with the initial plans.

The real test of whether the authority listens to residents will be how it reacts to the anticipated uproar over rehousing tenants on the Ladderswood and Alma estates.

Will the voices of the socially housed ring as loud as those well-heeled citizens who own homes overlooking Chase Green?

Cuts hurt elderly

THERE is little doubt that the impact of the cuts at Barnet and Chase Farm hospitals will have a detrimental effect on the level of care provided to patients, particularly the elderly.

Of course, there is an argument for modernisation, but how do NHS bosses think that plans for a computerised check-in system, combined with a 35 per cent reduction in administrative staff, mean that elderly patients will have a better experience when using the services?

Lots of elderly people find computers challenging, and who will assist them in using them when so many admin staff are facing the chop? Doctors?

The outsourcing of the transcription of patients' letters will prove to be another disaster. We are not talking about a BT bill, but personal information about sick people.

We've seen so often before that outsourcing leads to sensitive information being leaked or lost – this is potentially another accident waiting to happen.

GUIDELINES

Send letters to Letters to the Editor, The Advertiser, 187 Baker Street, Enfield, EN1 3JT or fax them to 020 8366 9376.

Time to shelve plans to cut hospital services

I READ with interest that the chief executive of Barnet and Chase Farm Hospitals Trust has quit after 18 months (Advertiser, November 28).

Since 2006, a series of CEOs and interim managers have arrived at Enfield's acute trusts and primary care trust promising to implement the BEH strategy, and all have left without seeing the job through.

Promises to upgrade primary care in the borough go unfulfilled and the recommendations of the Independent Reconfiguration Panel are not followed through.

We are now told Chase Farm is to be merged with the Royal Free. It is time to shelve the ridiculous plans to remove services from Chase Farm and start investing in the local NHS to meet the growing health needs of an increasing population.

I am now ashamed to come from Edmonton

WHAT has happened to Edmonton since I moved here in the 1970s?

Since then, I've seen a wonderful town become the sewer of the borough, frequently in the limelight of TV and newspapers due to crime.

Enfield's councillors never accept the blame for what has become of Edmonton, but blame previous parties and then, when local elections are coming, they preach they will all do something about it, but nothing ever really happens.

I feel so ashamed when people ask me where I come from and I reply Edmonton. They say: "I know Edmonton, that's where the so and so crime happened".

It's now come to the point where I feel I have to leave and move either to a nicer part of the borough or out of Enfield completely. I have lost faith in the safety of this town and feel I must move for the sake of my daughter and family.

The message I would like to give to all those councillors and Enfield MPs is, you bear full responsibility in my eyes as to what has happened to Edmonton, and before you preach to me and give me examples of what nice things have been done in Edmonton, it's not good enough.

You can try to fool yourselves but you won't fool the people of Edmonton.

Mike Nicolaides
Shirley Grove, Edmonton

□ THE Advertiser is now a tool for politicians who are allowed regular columns to make themselves look good, but in reality do very little for the vulnerable people in this borough, especially Edmonton.

No one around here knows who their councillors are.

Recently we had leaflets from the Labour people asking us to volunteer to raise issues on our environment.

Many of us phoned the number given but could not get a response. Also, we filled in our name and address to be contacted but still nothing happened. This seems to me how our politicians work.

We also hear the success story about the regeneration programme, but no one wants to talk about the misery it brought to us with social housing now making this area a worse place to live in.

Return land to its owners

AS the transfer of Cat Hill by Charles Baring (Advertiser, December 5) is not legal, surely his offspring are entitled to this property?

And why should land given for education not be returned to its original owners when no longer required?

Barnet College in Russell Lane and the college in Bounds Green were never returned to the council but were converted into flats, causing more congestion and higher rents in Barnet and Hendon where the funds were used to expand Barnet College and Middlesex University respectively.

The council transfers our land and cannot get it back for its residents. This is very unfair.

'Enfield's Law' means we are never free of knife crime link

IN am writing in response to your editorial (Advertiser, December 5), and believe tougher jail sentences are not necessarily the answer to ending the horror of knife crime.

Instead, working proactively with young people to prevent their slipping into gang culture (where they are far more likely to be involved in stabbings) is a better way forward.

I was saddened to read that MP Nick de Bois has damaged the good name of the London borough of Enfield by calling the new legislation concerning teenagers carrying knives "Enfield's Law".

It is certainly true that there have been a number of fatal knife stabbings in recent years, but I am sure it won't always be the case. With "Enfield's Law", we can never rid ourselves of this association.

'Enfield's Law': MP Nick de Bois

Wouldn't it be good if legislation carrying Enfield's name had a much more positive connotation?

OPINION

Ensure your number's up

THIS is an appeal to residents on behalf of couriers and other delivery people – please, please display a clearly visible house number on your front door or gate.

It is no fun having to cruise along the street searching for a particular home, wasting time and petrol and holding up other traffic. The problem is worse after dark. Frequently we drive past whole blocks with not one visible number to guide us.

Add a student to guest list

MAY we appeal to your readers to consider an interesting addition to their Christmas guest list?

We are urgently looking for more people to offer invitations to adult students from China and other parts of the world the chance to spend Christmas with a family rather than on a deserted campus.

Invitations can be for one day or three, and we will carefully match anyone who volunteers to host with a student they would enjoy meeting.

Frederick's simple solution to a long life: clean living

By Ruth McKee

AS the strains of Knees Up Mother Brown reverberated around the living room of Enfield's latest centenarian, his nearest and dearest revealed the secrets of his longevity.

Pauline Tickell, a niece of Frederick Searle, told the Advertiser that rather than a strict regime of drinking beer and whisky, the secret to the 100-year-old's long, healthy life is simple: clean living.

Mr Searle celebrated his landmark birthday at Cedar House care home, in Dryden Road, Enfield, on Friday along with relatives and fellow residents.

But despite leading a life of rectitude and simplicity, the centenarian has also had his adventures.

He was one of the British Army's Desert Rats, who took part in the siege of Tobruk in Libya during World War II.

Mr Searle was a gunner in the Royal Artillery and was captured by German forces and taken as a prisoner of war.

However, he and fellow prisoners made a dramatic escape from enemy hands before making it back behind British lines.

According to Pauline, longevity lies more in the genes than in any mystical elixir of life.

"His sister is 95 and his brother is 92 - longevity runs in the family, and as well, the whole family is an active family," she said.

And as the maestro in the living room moved into a rousing rendition of I'm Dreaming Of A White Christmas, Pauline and her husband Terrence told the Advertiser that the highlight of the birthday boy's big day so far had been his card from the Queen.

Delighted: Frederick Searle, 100, with the card he received from the Queen

The couple said it had made his day and was, they suspected, one of the reasons he was looking forward to this particular birthday so much.

Games Maker hoping to be top of the pops

Olympic volunteer Carol sings on choir's festive single

By Henry Vane

A GAMES Maker from Enfield is bidding for chart success as a member of a choir made up of volunteers from this summer's Olympics.

Carol Dekan, 51, of Tenniswood Road, who chauffeured VIPs during London 2012, is part of the Games Maker Choir, which has recorded I Wish For You The World in a bid get the coveted Christmas number one spot this year.

As part of her contribution with the 500-strong choir, Carol has performed at the Southbank Centre and during the athletes' parade in The Mall in September.

She told the Advertiser: "A choir is something I have always wanted to do, although I haven't sung in a group before."

"Being a Games Maker inspires you to do so many things you have never dreamed of before. You are all in it together."

Carol, who works in clinical auditing, said that singing at the athletes' parade in central London was "absolutely brilliant".

"We sang London songs and got the crowd going in the long wait," she said.

"Then the athletes started singing."

On song: Carol Dekan, right, with fellow choir member Jan Pearson

We were there to cheer them and they turned round to cheer us."

Carol added that the experience of being a Games Maker was wonderful.

She said: "The experience of mixing with Olympians and Paralympians and them being so grateful for what we were doing was incredible."

"The Olympics was the most amazing time of my life."

The song, which was written by Alistair Griffin, has been played on the Chris Evans breakfast show on Radio 2 and is due to be released on Sunday.

All proceeds will go to the British Olympic Foundation and British Paralympic Association.

For more information, see the Games Maker Choir's Facebook page at www.facebook.com/iwishforyoutheworld

Wrapped up warm: Some of those who took part in the walk

Charity walk for car crash teen

TWO pyjama-clad sisters led a sponsored-walk on Sunday to raise money for the only survivor of last month's horrific crash on the A10 that claimed the lives of three Enfield teenagers.

Gemma and Natalie Grainger, of Elsing Road, Enfield, were so devastated by the accident on November 9 that they decided to do something to help the community deal with the loss of Ashley Jones, 19, and Harry Ferrand and Jack Boyton, both 17.

The sisters decided they would raise money to help with the long-term care of Liam Bradshaw, 17.

The teenager is still in a serious condition in the Royal London Hospital, Whitechapel, after suffering multiple injuries in the crash when the car in which the teenagers were travelling hit a lorry on the A10 northbound between the Turnford and Hoddesdon junctions.

On Sunday more than 70 people made the 7.7-mile hike from Faces Nightclub, in Hoddesdon, to Enfield, dressed in their best pyjamas, lounge wear or onesies, despite the near freezing temperatures.

"We wanted to do something fun because there has been a lot of bad feeling and unease in the aftermath of the crash," said Natalie, 28.

She explained the close relationship between Gemma, 25, and Liam's sister made the duo determined to do whatever they could to help.

She added: "It's still early days and Liam is still undergoing treatment. He's making good progress but is still unconscious and the family are just taking every day as it comes."

A collection along the route raised £819, even before the sponsorship money had been tallied. All the proceeds, including money raised from the sale of special wristbands, will go towards Liam's long-term care.

World War II veteran dies at age of 90

Stanley compiled book about his experiences in Bomber Command

By Ruth McKee

A VETERAN bowls player has died in hospital just months after celebrating his 67th wedding anniversary.

Stanley Lainchbury, who represented Middlesex and played at Bush Hill Park Bowls Club for more than 30 years, died in Norfolk on November 29, at the age of 90.

The retired chartered accountant had been working on a book detailing his experiences of being in the Bomber Command in World War II.

His granddaughter, Lianne Lainchbury, 34, of Ladysmith Road, Enfield, was helping her grandfather collect his wartime reminiscences in the last months of his life.

And she told the Advertiser her family was only now really hearing about his daring feats when he took part in campaigns behind enemy lines.

"It was just it wasn't really something that people talked about, but in the last few years he really did start to open up about it," she said.

"He really was such a special man.

"Of course, everybody loves their grandad, but I realised what he had gone through and just how it must have felt for him to have gone through all that."

Together they compiled a book of his memories from the war, which Lianne believes brought the family even closer together.

Mr Lainchbury joined Bush Hill Park Bowls Club in the late 1970s and became a mainstay of the club in Abbey Road as he racked up an impressive trophy haul in his years playing for the club team as well as winning the club championship in his mid 80s.

He captained the club in 1990 and again in 2006.

He is survived by his wife Kay, three children, seven grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

His funeral is being held next Tuesday at Enfield Crematorium in Great Cambridge Road, Enfield.

The family has requested that donations be made to the RAF Benevolent Fund in lieu of flowers.

Harris + Hoole have the secret to perfect coffee

Harris + Hoole
128 High Street
High Barnet
EN5 5XQ

A NEW coffee house inspired by Samuel Pepys' 17th-century diary has opened in High Barnet.

The people behind Harris + Hoole are hoping their homely cafe, which opened at the end of November in High Street, will tempt shoppers in from the cold weather.

With a range of high-end teas and coffees on offer, the specially trained baristas serve temperature-controlled espressos for customers who really know their coffee.

The name for the cafe comes from Pepys' writings, in which the diarist talks of two coffee house wits, "Harris the player, and Mr Hoole of our college", who frequent a Covent Garden establishment.

Manager Caroline Crang said: "With our competitors in the High Street we needed to have an edge and something different about us.

"Our environment is something to be proud of as people come in and think: 'Wow, it's really cool in here'. It's a place where people want to be chilling out."

The cafe offers a breakfast, lunch and an afternoon menu, which ranges from fresh pastries in the morning to tea and scones in the afternoon.

And there is a large community chalk board on the wall to publicise events in the area.

Customers can choose from a range of coffees

Chill out with a hot drink: Harris + Hoole in Barnet and loose leaf teas which are served with timers that indicate when it is sufficiently brewed.

Caroline added: "The coffee is a different standard of coffee and is made by specially trained baristas who have been on an intense training course.

"It's the small things that count when making the perfect coffee."

The brand uses espresso machines which allow the team to control the temperature of the water hitting the coffee.

The High Barnet store is currently supporting the Noah's Ark Children's hospice and is encouraging customers to donate Christmas presents for kids.

Vote for your top restaurant

VOTING is well under way in the second stage of the Gannets' Restaurant of the Year Competition.

But you still have until December 20 to vote for your favourite among the 11 nominated eateries.

To vote for your favourite, call 0901 307 1707 and enter the code of your choice from the list below. Or you can vote by texting the number 63333. Text GANNETS, leave a space and then add the two-digit code from below. If you do not want to receive details of other products or services, text EXIT at the end of your message.

Phone calls cost 51p from a BT landline and calls from other networks will vary. If you are ringing from a mobile, it will cost considerably more.

Texts cost 50p plus standard network rates.

Calls or texts made after the closing date of noon on December 20 will not be counted but you may still be charged.

The three restaurants with the most votes will get a visit from those lovely Gannet girls, who will decide on the eventual winners in January.

Monster magic: Tales From The Arabian Nights brings together seven mystical fables at the Dugdale Centre

Arabian Nights full of mystical magic

By Henry Vane

DUST off your magic carpet and dig out your turban for Tales From The Arabian Nights at the Dugdale Centre this Christmas.

The production, from Skewbald Theatre, is an imaginative interpretation of seven fables featuring popular tales including Sinbad, Aladdin and Ali Baba And The Forty Thieves, as well as some of more obscure stories such as The Anklet and The Tale Of The Jester And The Fishbone.

Tory Sandars, the show's producer, said: "Tales From The Arabian Nights is an interactive storytelling experience for the whole family, put together especially for the Enfield community."

"Sat among the cushions of a Bedouin tent, Shahrazad will tell fables that will fill the air with treasure hunters and dark magicians, and the audience will take to the high seas with Sinbad, visit a den of thieves, rub shoulders with sultans and dive into Cairo's alleys thick with heroes and enchanted animals."

The show will take place in an intimate new venue, Upstairs at the Dugdale Centre.

Four professional actors will perform multiple roles and the show will also include poetry, singing, dancing, puppetry, light projection, animation and masks.

It is taking place at Upstairs at the Dugdale Centre, in London Road, Enfield, from Saturday until December 30.

Tickets cost £12/£8.

To book, call the box office on 020 8807 6680 or visit www.dugdalecentre.co.uk

Reviews

The Westender – latest theatre reviews

with Mary McConnell

Don't ask any questions, just enjoy the fun

ALTHOUGH absolutely bonkers in many ways, this year's Chickenshed production is such an exhilarating show that I couldn't help but be swept up by its energy and joy. Borrowing heavily from the film Back To The Future, Sleeping Beauty – Dream On is a fairytale with more than a few twisted surprises.

In order to try and escape the curse placed on her by her evil godmother, 16-year-old Beauty finds herself transported back to the 1970s (Who knows why or how? It's best not to ask too many questions) and there she finds her parents in the days before they were married. From opposite ends of the social spectrum, Beauty's parents seem destined not to fall in love, and it is down to the surly teenager to bring them together and ensure her future existence.

The cast, as ever, does an incredible job holding the fragile parts of the show together and keeping the whole thing ticking along.

Their comic timing and sheer exuberance allowed me to gloss over the gaping holes in the plot. The huge song and dance numbers are the highlights of the show, with the incredible choreography playing the starring role. There is a cast of 800 in this production and keeping everyone in line can be no easy task.

This is a fun alternative to a pantomime. Chickenshed Theatre, Chase Side, Southgate, N14 4PE. Until January 12. Box office: 020 8292 9222.

Fun: Sleeping Beauty – Dream On

One-man version of A Christmas Carol is a triumph

SIMON Callow's Jackanory-style version of A Christmas Carol is a wonderfully atmospheric show which proves just the thing to whet the appetite for the festive season.

Alone on stage with just a smattering of props and some clever projections, Callow uses his voice and Dickens' words to conjure up a Victorian London filled with fog and snow and a ghost or two around the corner. Throughout this relatively short show, Callow, dressed in a simple overcoat, manages to breath new life into the characters with whom many of us are perhaps overly familiar. He seamlessly moves from the miserly Scrooge to the frightening Jacob Marley and on to the other cast of characters and back again, all the while resisting impersonations. It is a highly impressive feat of concentration and memory, and all credit to the actor's skill that both he and the audience are quickly swept up in Dickens' magic.

This show might not be breaking any new ground, and the play did not avoid the awful mawkishness of Tiny Tim, but there the fault, I suppose, lies more with the original text than this production.

It might be too much for the very young, but for everyone else this should prove a very fine festive treat indeed.

Arts Theatre,
6-7 Great Newport Street,
London, WC2H 7JB.
Until January 6.

MOVE QUICKLY TO BE PART OF 2012 SUCCESS STORY

With a quarter of the houses now reserved at Twenty 12, a select new Matthew Homes development in Welwyn Garden City, selling agent William H Brown is advising anyone interested in buying there to get in touch with them as soon as possible.

Twenty 12 comprises just twelve 3 bedroom semi detached homes set behind secure electronic gates. The homes have been skilfully designed to be low maintenance and energy efficient with gas fired central heating, solar roof panels and UPVC double glazed windows. All have an en-suite shower room as well as family bathroom and fitted kitchens which include an oven, hob and cooker hood. Each of the remaining homes for sale has two parking spaces and there are also designated visitor parking areas.

Located on Cole Green Lane, Twenty 12 offers excellent access to the town centre, railway station, local shops, the QE2 hospital and the A1 Motorway. A range of schools for all ages can be found locally together with wide ranging leisure opportunities including Gosling Sports Centre, Stanborough Park and Lakes and the Panshanger Golf Complex.

"One of the key attractions of Twenty 12 has to be its great location within walking distance of the railway station. We have noticed a growing trend over the past year of buyers relocating from North London to Welwyn Garden City where they can get a lot more for their money but still be within a short commute of the capital. At the same time the development is proving to be equally popular with people upsizing to a reasonably priced family home within the town," says William H Brown New Homes Manager, Stephen Holbrook who adds: "2012 was a fantastic year for Britain and we feel confident that Twenty 12 is going to be equally successful in its own way."

A showhome is open at Twenty 12 every day between 10am and 5pm, including throughout the New Year period. To find out more about availability and prices, which currently start at £289,000, contact selling agents William H Brown in Wigmore North, Welwyn Garden City on 01707 324361.

ADVERTORIAL

Part Exchange Now Available at Fifth Avenue in Harlow

Part Exchange schemes have been helping buyers in the UK secure their ideal home for a number of years and they have proven very popular particularly with buyers who are having difficulty selling an existing property. Now, at Barratt Homes' Fifth Avenue development in Harlow, in Essex, the award winning developer is offering a range of three bedroom family homes through the Part Exchange scheme.

Using the Part Exchange scheme means there are no estate agency fees, no long chains, peace of mind of a guaranteed sale and perhaps most importantly, it allows the purchase of a brand new properties, with all the additional associated benefits. With Barratt Homes' straight-forward Part Exchange scheme all a prospective purchaser has to do is identify the Barratt Homes' property they wish to secure, the Company then buys their existing property enabling them to move forward with the sale.

Sales Director for Barratt North London, Steve Garton, comments: "Around 20,000 homes were bought using Part Exchange schemes in the UK last year for all types of property.

Our customers that buy using the scheme soon see how quick and simple it can be. We present a good market offer for their property; they choose which home they want and that's pretty much it; no long property chains, no middle-men and a beautiful new home for them at the end. We're delighted that we can now offer Part Exchange on all of the three bedroom family homes at Fifth Avenue."

Location is always crucial for family living and Fifth Avenue's could not be better. Positioned off Allende Avenue, this brand new collection of homes enjoys a fantastic location directly opposite Town Park, central Harlow's largest public outside space. This 164 acre park offers everything from open air concerts and adventure playground facilities, to river walks and even a petting zoo, making it the ideal space for children and parents to stretch their legs.

The town itself is a busy and thriving hub. Once a centre for manufacturing Harlow is now a focus for research and development and many large companies are based in the area. For retail, residents at Fifth Avenue have a range of different shopping centres to choose from along with a wide array of high street shops and boutiques. In addition, Harlow has 31 primary schools and five special status schools and colleges - many of which have achieved 'good' and 'outstanding' Ofsted ratings. Amongst the high achieving educational institutions is Harlow College, which was recently rated the number one college in England.

Steve Fisk, who recently purchased a home at Fifth Avenue, commented, "We are delighted with our new home. We bought a fantastic three bedroom house which is perfect for us and our growing family. The house itself is bright and airy, and all the rooms are good sizes. The location of the development really does offer the best of everything with great travel links, good schools, easy access to local amenities and at the same time with plenty of green open space nearby for my little boy to enjoy."

All the properties at Fifth Avenue also come with Barratt Homes' special five year warranty on fixtures and fittings and the standard 10 year NHBC construction guarantee.

Carrera packs power into four-wheel drive

By Matt Joy

EVERYTHING happens for a reason. You could argue that this philosophy helps cope with the randomness of the universe – but it is true that a chance occurrence can help make sense of something previously confusing.

This idea perfectly describes the existence of the Porsche 911 Carrera 4. Whether you plump for the standard 4 or 4S, you are paying a premium over the two-wheel drive Carrera 2 and 2S that also nets you subtly different rear bodywork and the inevitable gains in traction an extra pair of driven wheels brings.

Yet the two-wheel drive Carrera is a devastatingly effective machine already. If there's one thing it's not lacking it is traction, the rear-engined arrangement maximising the available grip when powering out of a bend – not forgetting, of course, that the new 911 comes with the hugely effective Porsche Active Stability Management system to help out in a tight spot. So why choose a Carrera 4 then?

Well, unlike previous Carrera 4s, the 991 generation is much closer visually to the two-wheel drive version. In the past, the extra width at the rear has been known to unbalance the overall shape a little.

But now it carries a little more muscle to arguably make it more visually appealing than the Carrera 2. That rear light signature might seem like a small thing but it catches the eye and makes you wonder why every 911 doesn't have it.

Mechanically, the differences between the 4 and the 2 are straightforward. You get the same sonorous 3.4/3.8-litre flat six engine with two outputs (standard and S model) with a choice of seven-speed manual or seven-speed PDK dual-clutch gearbox.

A further trick is a double de-clutch facility, which can be switched on or off. Essentially, in manual-equipped cars, it will blip the throttle on downchanges to match the revs to the wheel speed, thereby avoiding any nasty locking of wheels when pressing on.

Climbing aboard the 911 you are greeted by the same appealing cabin, much improved on the outgoing car in both ergonomics and material quality, and the reassuring snap and click of the switches gives the impression it will last as long as the bulletproof mechanicals.

The four-wheel-drive Carrera 4 diverts much of its power to the rear unless it detects a loss of grip, so it drives exactly how you want – like a two-wheel drive 911.

Nothing is sacrificed in terms of slickness, sensitivity and accuracy as the car responds to inputs. There is a modest weight penalty but that's offset by the increased traction.

You can exploit the Carrera 4S's

Facts at a glance

■ Model: Porsche 911 Carrera 4S, £87,959.

■ Engine: 3.8-litre petrol producing 400bhp and 324lb ft of torque.

■ Transmission: Seven-speed manual gearbox driving all four wheels.

■ Performance: Top speed 185mph, 0-62mph in 4.5 seconds.

■ Economy: 28.5mpg combined.

■ Emissions: 234g/km of CO2.

mighty flat-six, hear that distinctive engine note rise and fall but accelerate harder and sooner out of bends. Torque vectoring is standard on the higher-powered S version – switching power between wheels on the same axle as well as front to back.

If you do get caught out by a change of surface, the Carrera 4 can switch the power from front to rear or vice versa in 100 milliseconds.

The four-wheel drive version makes the 911 even more of a practical, everyday supercar – not that the standard Carrera 2 is untrustworthy, but with the Carrera 4 you can savour its power, precision and sublime chassis all year round.

GALLAS FEARS FOR TOP THREE HOPES

By Dominique Stafford

WILLIAM GALLAS admits that he is not convinced that Tottenham Hotspur are capable of securing a top three finish in the Premier League this season to secure automatic qualification for the Champions League.

Spurs missed out on the chance to remain level on points with third-placed Chelsea on Sunday as they slumped to a last-gasp defeat at Everton which saw them slip below their hosts into fifth.

Despite being second best for much of the contest, Clint Dempsey's 76th-minute strike had looked set to give Tottenham all three points until Steven Pienaar and Nikica Jelavic both struck in stoppage time to seal a dramatic victory for the hosts.

"We have to pass one more step to be on the same level as the top three, and I don't know when it is going to happen," skipper Gallas said.

"I hope it will be this season, but it is a shame because when we get very near something always happens and we draw or lose.

"In our squad we have some players that have experience now, so I don't think it is about a lack of maturity. For example, on Sunday we did almost everything right, but they scored that goal which killed us. It is difficult to explain, but sometimes you need luck.

"Was tiredness an issue? Yes. We played on Thursday. Even if we had three days to recover it is not easy, but when you want to win some competitions you have to play every game.

"However, sometimes it is not easy, especially at this time of year because we play so many games – but that is not an excuse. What we have to know is that the game is never finished until the referee blows his whistle."

The two late goals mean that Tottenham have now conceded ten times in the final 15 minutes of league matches this season, and head coach Andre Villas-Boas is well aware that this has cost them dearly.

Room for improvement: William Gallas is not sure Spurs are good enough to finish in the top three

"It was a disappointing result bearing in mind we were leading taking the game into the last minute," he said. "It has been quite an adventure in the Premier League this season – if we count the number of results that have been going for us before the last minutes we would be first.

"There are so many different reasons, and it is not really easy to explain because a couple of them came from different situations.

"It is something we are aware of, which is why we speak about it openly, and seeing off games is something we have to improve. It is not a mental thing, it is the nature of the game because it was our best period for quite some time in the second half. It is a difficult blow to take."

Six more sign up as Skolars continue to prepare for new rugby league season

SIX more members of last season's squad have committed their futures to the London Skolars ahead of the 2013 rugby league season.

John Paxton, Joe Price, Martyn Smith, Louis Robinson and James Roche have all re-signed for the club, while Joe Ridley – who spent the last campaign with the Skolars on a dual registration basis from the London Broncos – has now joined the club on a permanent basis following his release by the Broncos.

Paxton has been with the Skolars since 2009, when he started playing while still at Leeds Metropolitan University. In 2011 he was part of the Great Britain Academic Lions team who went to Australia and pulled off a remarkable series win.

He made 21 first-team starts last season, mostly on the wing, scoring four tries – and has made 55 appearances for the club in total.

Price, who has made 61 appearances for the Skolars, was a consistent performer through the 2012 campaign as he started 20 matches.

Smith arrived from the London Broncos last year and made ten appearances, including four starts, during his first season with the Skolars – scoring three tries in the process.

Robinson was another player who joined the Skolars from the Broncos, making seven appearances last season. He also featured for the Canada Rugby League team in September when they took on the USA Tomahawks in the Colonial Cup, scoring one try and kicking three goals in the two-match series.

Roche was one of four Australians to have joined the Skolars last season. He made a total of nine appearances and settled well in London, leading to him signing a new deal for 2013.

Head coach Joe Mbu said: "Martyn, Louis and James all made their Skolars debuts in 2012, and I'm delighted to have secured their signatures for the 2013 campaign. I believe all three players have a lot to contribute to the squad in the coming season."
